RESOURCE BANK

INCLUDED HERE are 192 of the most useful, provocative, just plain intriguing articles, reports, white papers, blogposts, books, and other materials the Research Lab reviewed for CURRENT:LA Water. Many of the publications noted are freely available, with only a handful from academic journals that require a subscription to access. We reached both into and outside of the domains of public art and cultural research to examine a variety of constructs, models, and methodologies.

We've divided the list into two sections: The first (pp. 2-9) is focused on our primary evaluation questions and dimensions of success, the second (pp. 10-14) on the sub-topic of our white paper on high-performing teams.

Keywords and phrases we searched (not only during planning and pre-production, but also while we analyzed data and began designing effects pathways) included:

- Affective domain
- Arts-led regeneration
- Attendance
- Audience engagement/participation
- Civic engagement/discourse
- Civil society
- Collaborative teams
- Creative economy
- Creative placemaking
- Culture/arts-led regeneration
- Cultural/creative industries
- Cultural economy
- Cultural tourism
- Cultural value
- Drought
- Economic development
- Economic impact and the arts
- Experience economy
- High-performing teams
- Human capital
- Informal learning
- Organizational trust
- Peak water
- Public art
- Public spaces
- Quality of experience
- Social capital
- Social change
- Social impact
- Social inclusion
- Social networks
- Teamwork
- Tourism
- Urban development
- Urban identity/planning/ policy
- Urban regeneration
